Notes:

- Hotel standards in Gansu are generally lower than those in southern cities. Please prepare accordingly. In case of peak seasons, hotel shortages, or government requisitions, our agency reserves the right to adjust to hotels of the same standard.
- If force majeure events (such as typhoons, heavy rain, maintenance, etc.) or policy changes result in an inability to visit certain attractions or engage in scheduled activities, our agency reserves the right to cancel or replace them with equivalent attractions or activities. No refunds will be provided for complimentary attractions or activities. We also reserve the right to adjust the order of visits and accommodation. If there are any refunds during the tour, the refund will be based on the agency's discounted price for the affected activities, not the published price. Some scenic spots and hotels in Qinghai and Gansu may have their own shopping areas, which are not arranged by our agency. We cannot accept complaints regarding these places. We appreciate your understanding.
- The altitude in the northwest region is relatively high. Please avoid intense physical activities. If you feel unwell, inform the tour guide promptly, and we will take appropriate measures based on your health condition. Comfortable walking shoes are recommended, and avoid wearing leather shoes or high heels. To prevent altitude sickness, travelers are advised to bring common medications such as motion sickness tablets, pain relievers, or powder for headaches. Do not take medication from others without consulting a medical professional.
- Please avoid leaving the group without prior notice. If it is necessary, inform the tour guide via SMS or in writing, and return to the group at the agreed time. For areas with safety concerns or poor public security, please avoid going there. During free time, travel in pairs and avoid going alone. Any sightseeing activities not arranged by our company are at your own risk. Any loss or disputes arising from these activities will be the sole responsibility of the traveler. The agency is not liable for any related issues. During the night or free activities, please go in groups and inform your guide. Keep the guide's contact number handy and ensure your safety. Valuable items should be stored in the hotel safe. Remember the hotel name and location, and avoid trusting strangers, especially tricycle drivers or street vendors. Remember: there's no such thing as a free lunch.
- Practice responsible and respectful tourism. Be mindful of the environment by protecting the plants, trees, and cultural relics in the scenic areas. Do not deface monuments or litter. Respect the local minority customs. Many scenic spots and hotels have street vendors nearby. If you do not intend to make a purchase, avoid bargaining with them. If you settle on a price and choose not to buy, it may cause conflicts. Maintain a calm attitude during your trip and try to understand and help each other.
- Please cooperate with the tour guide in filling out the local "Guest Feedback Form" truthfully. Any complaints or demands will be based on this form, filled out by the traveler in Qinghai or Gansu. Complaints will not be accepted if the form is not filled out or is filled out incorrectly. If you have any concerns regarding the service standards of the travel agency during the trip, please try to resolve them locally. If issues cannot be resolved during the tour, they can be recorded on-site. Note: Travel complaints must be submitted within 30 days from the return to the departure location.
